 as give their money out of hope-Henry VIII. (prol.)
 give us leisure for these own 1.1
 a gift that heaven gives for him 1.1
 pray, give me favour, sir; this cunning as give a crutch to the dead 1.1
 and give thanks to you that choked it would give it quick consideration 1.2
 'tis time to give them physic 1.3
 but few now give so great ones 1.3
 go, give them welcome, you can speak then give my charge up to sir Nicholas and give your hearts to, when they once 1.1
 yet I can give you inking of 1.1
 your grace would give us but an hour to give her the avault 1.2
 and so give me up to the sharpest kind 1.4
 thus I came, give heed to 1.4
 we shall give you the full cause 1.1
 Englishman dare give me counsel? 1.1
 to give up willingly that noble 1.1
 that may give me remembrance of my 1.2
 how I have given the way to us 1.2

 nay, I'll give my word for 1.1
 to give me now a little benefit 1.1
 and they will almost give us 1.1
 If you give way, or hedge aside 1.1
 and give to dust, that is a little 1.1
 give express to 1.1
 that men do give themselves 1.1
 and give him note of our approach 1.1
 and give as soft attachment 1.1
 we must give up to Diomedes' hand 1.1
 althymen could I give my grief 1.1
 to give thee nightly visitation 1.1
 lord, I'll give her to thy hand 1.1
 give with thy trumpet a loud note 1.1

 for I mean to give thee none 1.1
 he gives me 1.1
 I give thee warning on 1.1
 too proud to give thanks to the gods to provide, and give great gifts 1.1
 to heart, 'tis not enough to give 1.1
 thou wilt be wiser to thyself 1.1
 not to give regard to you 1.1
 a beggar's dog, and give it Timon 1.1
 why, give my horse to Timon (rep.) 1.1
 give me breath; I do beseech you 1.1
 give it these fellows to work 1.1
